

Derivation of aerosol properties from polarized observations

Didier Tanré et al.

Univ. Lille, CNRS, UMR 8518 – Laboratoire d’Optique Atmosphérique, F-59000 Lille, France
(didier.tanre@univ-lille.fr)

From the combination of multi-spectral, directional and polarized measurements provided by the POLDER/PARASOL instrument, it is expected to better retrieve aerosol parameters and better estimate the resulting radiative effects and forcing. The contribution of polarization regarding aerosols parameters like shape, size, refractive index will be illustrated.

Mode of presentation: Invited